ANTONIO D'ALESSIO AWARD

Best Ph.D. thesis in combustion and related fields

in memory of Prof. Antonio D'Alessio

2024

The Italian Section of the Combustion Institute (ASICI) is pleased to announce the 1st edition of the Antonio D'Alessio Award to acknowledge a remarkable Ph.D. thesis in combustion and related fields. The prize commemorates Antonio D'Alessio's career, scientific achievements, and contributions to the Italian Section community. The award recognizes exceptional thesis work, encompassing either combustion fundamentals or applications, particularly within the context of energy transition and sustainable processes, by addressing relevant chemical, physical, and environmental aspects. It aims to highlight contributions that advance our understanding and address critical issues in these domains. The prize will be awarded at the 46th meeting of the Italian Section of the Combustion Institute. During the event, the winner will be invited to deliver a brief overview of their thesis work. This occasion provides an opportunity to showcase the recipient's research accomplishments and further contribute to the intellectual exchange within the combustion research community. The prize contains an Award document, a sum of 1.000 Euros, plus complimentary registration to the 46th meeting of the Italian Section. The evaluation committee, composed of national and international specialists, will be announced following the submission deadline.
